

Andreas Charalambous has a bachelor's degree in Sports Marketing and Management and brings a wealth of coaching experience to Cornerstone Classical Academy. Andreas obtained his coaching and talent identification qualifications in England, where he coached youth soccer and worked for Manchester Football Association. His passion for soccer and nurturing talent has driven him to help young athletes reach their full potential. In addition to coaching, Andreas has experience working in the sports technology industry and collaborating with professional soccer teams in Europe. His experience in integrating data analysis and innovative tech solutions into performance coaching has given him valuable insights into modern player development. As the Director of Soccer at Cornerstone, he will oversee the creation and growth of the school's soccer programs, aiming to help student athletes excel athletically and academically. Andreas was born in South Africa and raised in Cyprus, where he played soccer for AEP Paphos FC. He and his wife, Vanessa, have two young sons.
